MAYA'S FITNESS FABLE

Beyond Limits: The Pyramid of Fitness Blueprint

In the heart of a bustling city lived a woman named Maya. She was a dedicated professional, excelling in her career, but there was one area where she constantly struggled: fitness. Despite numerous attempts, Maya found herself perpetually on a rollercoaster of motivation and defeat. Each new year began with a resolution to get fit, but as months passed, her determination waned, and she slipped back into old habits.

Maya's journey began with enthusiasm. She joined a popular gym and bought the latest fitness gear. Her mornings started with intense workouts, and her evenings ended with meticulously prepared healthy meals. For a while, she felt invincible, but soon the novelty wore off. The early morning alarms became harder to heed, and the allure of fast food grew stronger. Maya's busy schedule and exhaustion from work left her with little energy for her fitness goals. Slowly, her gym visits became sporadic, and her healthy eating habits fell by the wayside.

The turning point came one evening when Maya attended a friend's wedding. As she watched her friends dance the night away with boundless energy, she felt a pang of envy and disappointment in herself. She realized that her struggle was not just about losing weight or gaining muscle; it was about reclaiming her vitality and self-confidence. It was about Unlocking Potential.

Determined to make a lasting change, Maya decided to approach fitness differently. She sought the guidance of a fitness mentor, Corey, who was known for his approach to whole body health and the amazing results his clients consistently experienced. On their first meeting, Corey asked Maya to share her struggles and goals. He listened intently, then crafted a personalized plan that went beyond physical exercise. Corey introduced Maya to the concept of developing a Strong, Steady and Adaptable Body through The Pyramid of Fitness Blueprint.

Instead of diving into rigorous pre-planned workouts, they started with a simple movement called The Limber Test and Corey asked what she felt. He encouraged her to use The Limber Test to listen to what her body needed. He emphasized the importance of listening and responding rather than predicting and demanding. Maya began to understand that her previous frustrations in this area were not because she lacked capacity. She had lacked the guidance that met her needs so the results did not, and could not, match her efforts. Out of her frustration she became aware of an amazing feeling that had evaded her in this part of her life for far too long, HOPE!

She started the next day's exercise by doing The Limber Test, and she felt tired. Corey helped her to understand that if she were to do:

Strong Work	She would not have the additional energy needed to push through discomfort to her outer limits.
Adaptable Work	The focus on slower breath could add to her tiredness
Steady Work	She would be teaching her body how to turn on her power plant and have a growing reserve of energy and confidence that would empower her throughout the day. Exactly what she needs right now.

This revelation was unfamiliar, yet it made complete sense AND even better IT WORKED!

The Pyramid of Fitness

As weeks turned into months, Maya noticed significant changes. While she often experienced fatigue in the mornings, there were times her body asked for Adaptable work to reduce some pains, and other times her body asked for Strong work and she had new breakthroughs! Her energy levels increased, and she began to feel more confident. Workouts, once a place of dread, became a sacred space where she challenged, accepted and celebrated her growth. Maya's self-respect soared, not just in her physical appearance and abilities but in her resilience, determination and connection with herself and others.

The day to day transformation was remarkable. Her triumph came when Maya participated in her first charity run. Crossing the finish line, she was overwhelmed with a sense of accomplishment. It wasn't just about the distance she had covered but the journey she had embraced.

She had learned that success in fitness wasn't about quick fixes or perfection.

The North Star principles that she was following would guide her on her way:

5.

Expansive Awareness

As her fitness improved, Maya realized that her sleep and stress levels also played a role in her well-being. This newfound awareness led her to make positive changes in all areas of her life.

3.

Balanced Growth Mindset

She learned that setbacks are not failures, but part of the journey. Embracing the ups and downs, Maya found strength in the process itself.

Compassionate Challenge

When fatigue threatened her progress, Corey's compassionate guidance encouraged her to try a new approach, showing her the importance of listening to her body.

1

Personal Accountability

Frustrated by years of failed attempts, Maya took ownership of her fitness, recognizing that lasting change begins with personal accountability.

Grounded Resilience

The challenges she faced became opportunities to build resilience. Maya emerged stronger, both physically and mentally, proving that setbacks can lead to deeper strength.

Maya's story of fitness struggles and eventual success is a testament to the power of resilience.

She discovered that true transformation comes from within, fueled by a commitment to oneself and the courage to re-engage quickly when we get off track. Her Stay Active Method journey inspired others in her community, showing them that with the right mindset and support, anyone could overcome their challenges and achieve their goals.
